Leading New Zealand restructuring firm joins KordaMentha

One of New Zealand's leading restructuring firms has joined the KordaMentha group.

The firm, based in Auckland and led by Michael Stiasny, Brendon Gibson and Grant Graham, was previously a member of the Ferrier Hodgson group.

KordaMentha partner Mark Korda said today: "We are particularly proud that the pre-eminent New Zealand restructuring firm has joined the KordaMentha group and we look forward to working together on our mutual clients."

The New Zealand group has 23 staff. This brings to more than 200 the total number of staff in the KordaMentha group. KordaMentha has offices in Melbourne, Sydney, Adelaide, Auckland, Brisbane, Perth, Gold Coast and Townsville as well as global reach through co-operation with AlixPartners worldwide.

KordaMentha began with the two principals, Mark Korda and Mark Mentha, in April 2002 while they were working on the Ansett collapse. They quickly established KordaMentha as one of the leading, independent restructuring firms. The company's expansion has also brought diversification into corporate turnaround services, real estate advisory services and forensic accounting.
